

POISON KILLS DR. A. H. GARDNER

HE SENT FOR PRUSSIC ACID AND TOOK TOO MUCH.

He Died Instantly—Poison Is Used in the Treatment of Chronic Bronchitis. From Which He Suffered—Had Been Successful in His Practice.

Dr. Arthur H. Gardner of 939 Madison avenue, a young physician whose future, according to his friends, seemed particularly promising, was found dead in his apartment at that address yesterday morning. It is almost certain that his death was caused by prussic acid, which in a very dilute form is sometimes prescribed for chronic bronchitis and incipient tuberculosis. He had purchased a solution of the acid just before going to bed. His friends believe that he took an overdose of it accidentally.

Dr. Gardner was 37 years old. He was born in Springfield, Mass., was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1898, spent a year studying in Germany and then for two years was house physician of the German Hospital. He had also been attached to the Presbyterian Hospital and the Vanderbilt Clinic. He made obstetrics his specialty, and his success for a young physician is described as remarkable.

For some time, according to his friend, Dr. Walter L. Niles, who had an office in the same house, Dr. Gardner had been much troubled about his health. Early in the spring he suffered a great deal from sciatica and took morphin to ease his sufferings. He had been practically cured of this trouble and had left off the morphin.

He had what was diagnosed as chronic bronchitis and was afraid of tuberculosis developing. Dr. Niles and Dr. Gardner, who lived in the same house in which they had their offices, spent Sunday evening together. Dr. Niles left Dr. Gardner about 10 o'clock to go to bed. All that time Dr. Gardner's cough was giving him some trouble.

Yesterday morning he did not appear for breakfast, and Dr. Niles went to his room and found him lying dead in his nightclothes on the outside of the bed. As though he had got up in the night to get some medicine, there was a small light burning. When Dr. Niles's physician, Lehane, arrived he found in a waste basket a small bottle which stood near the bed. A small cork was on the floor. On the table was a glass about one-third full of water. The poison had been purchased at a drug store in the neighborhood, and there Dr. Lehane was told that Dr. Gardner late on Sunday evening had sent around his own prescription calling for a strong solution of the acid. Dr. Lehane said last night that three drops of this solution in water was the utmost safe dose and that one drop over meant instant death. No dropper was found in Dr. Gardner's apartments.

Dr. Gardner may have been in such a condition, "said Dr. Lehane, that the usual dose killed him, or again he may have taken one too many drops. It has always been regarded as very dangerous to attempt to drop this acid, and the fact that there is here the chance of getting too much. There is no doubt from the position in which Dr. Gardner was found that he died instantly. The bottle probably fell from his hand into the basket. As a rule when doctors prescribe hydrocyanic acid for their patients a much weaker solution is given."

Dr. Gardner was unmarried. His father and mother live in Springfield. His father came here yesterday, but went back to Springfield after making arrangements for the removal of the body.

MRS. IDA E. WOOD'S SUITS.
That Against Herbert L. Satterlee Dismissed—He Didn't Advise Her to Buy Bonds.
The suit brought in Nassau county by Mrs. Ida E. Wood, widow of Benjamin Wood, proprietor of the New York Daily News, against the Commonwealth Trust Company, the Mercantile Trust Company, John J. McCook and the former directors of the Trust Company of the Republic, was called for trial by Judge Martin J. Keogh at Mincola yesterday morning. Clarence J. Shearn appeared for the plaintiff, D. Cary Herick for the Commonwealth Trust Company, J. Langdon Ward for the defendant, Herbert L. Satterlee and other lawyers for their respective clients.

Mrs. Wood's complaint was served a year ago. It is alleged that she purchased in June, 1902, 200 bonds of the Shipbuilding company on the strength of an advertisement which appeared in a newspaper, and that she also relied upon a prospectus which her sister, Miss Mary E. Mayfield, obtained at the office of the Trust Company of the Republic. The complaint further stated that when the prospectus was delivered to Miss Mayfield in the presence of the defendant, Satterlee, and that he directed her attention to the advantages of the investment and that she relied thereon in purchasing the bonds.

The ground of the plaintiff's claim against Mr. Satterlee was the alleged false representation made concerning shipbuilding bonds, and in his answer he denied that he had ever made any such representation, or had any participation whatever in the purchase of the bonds by Mrs. Wood. It was a matter of knowledge among those conversant with the case that the charge that Mr. Satterlee had any communication whatever with Mrs. Wood or her sister, or ever saw either of them, was untrue and was without the slightest evidence to support it. When the case was called in February, and again last week, Mr. Satterlee was on each occasion ready with any representation in court, and yesterday morning the plaintiff's attorney moved to adjourn the case again.

Mr. Ward for Mr. Satterlee stated that he was ready for the case, and that he had moved for judgment dismissing the complaint and for costs against the plaintiff in favor of his client. As the plaintiff was not prepared with any proof to substantiate the charges, the judge granted the motion, and judgment was entered accordingly. The cases of the other defendants were adjourned until tomorrow.

THE WEATHER.
The moderate storm which was moving eastward had its center over New England yesterday and spread its rain over the New England States, the Lake region, the northern part of Virginia, Maryland and New Jersey and all of New York. Showers fell in Eastern Tennessee and in North Carolina; elsewhere the weather was fair.

The pressure was high in the Southwest and on the north Pacific Coast.

The temperature was higher generally in the Western States, but there was little change elsewhere.

In this city rain fell until nearly sunset, wind fresh, moderate, clearing to sea level at 8 A. M., 20.2; 3 P. M., 20.7.

The temperature yesterday, as recorded by the official thermometer, is shown in the annexed table:

9 A. M. 70° 63° 8 P. M. 60° 67° 12 P. M. 70° 72° 12 Mid. 63° 60°

Highest temperature, 72°.

Lowest temperature, 60°.
